Man Is Stabbed In "War" Argument in Tap Room

Bristol today had its first war casualty, when, as the result of an argument concerning the merits of their respective countries, a native of Czechoslovakia and a native of Poland mixed things up in a bar-room here.

These staunch defenders of their countries did not fight with bullets, but had a hand-to-hand combat with one allegedly wielding a knife with almost disastrous effects on the other. The combatants this morning stood before the bar of justice with Edward Lynn sitting upon the bench.

Peter Krabchak, 44, of 248 Hayes street, native of Czechoslovakia, and who has taken out his first papers as a United States citizen, appeared with his head in bandages, the result of a deep stab wound above his left eye.

According to Krabchak, the wound was inflicted by Peter Sak, 47, of 2032 Trenton avenue, a native of Poland, who told Justice Lynn that he is a naturalized United States citizen. Sak was charged with aggravated assault and battery, and assault and battery. He was held in $500 bail for appearance at court.

According to Krabchak, and his son, Peter, Jr., 24, father and son went into the Karp tap-room last evening and had a few drinks. They said that Sak was walking around the room talking of Czechoslovakia and Poland. Sak applied a vile epithet to Krabchak, who in turn, according to his son, grabbed Sak by the throat. Peter, Jr., separated the combatants and took his father outside and started for home. Krabchak then decided to return to get some beer to take home. It was then that the two evidently began to argue about their native countries, with the stab wound resulting. It required six stitches to close the wound, which just missed Krabchak's eye.

Russo-Japanese Sign Armistice Halting Hostilities

TOKYO, Sept. 16—(INS)—Official announcement in Tokyo that a Russo-Japanese armistice, halting hostilities along the outer Mongolian-Manchukuan border, had been signed in Moscow created a public sensation in Japan today.

A foreign office spokesman, commenting on the armistice, declared: "The governments have recognized that solution of the Nomonhan dispute will contribute toward restoring normal relations between Japan and the Soviets."

(Nomonhan is the name of the area which has been the scene of the recent fighting along the Manchukuan-Outer Mongolian border.)

Announcement of the cessation of hostilities was made by the Imperial army and navy headquarters in Tokyo following approval of the agreement by Emperor Hirohito.

Existence of the Moscow negotiations have been known to correspondents here for two weeks, but the Foreign Ministry denied that such conversations were in progress and all mention of them was forbidden until the announcement was made in Tokyo this afternoon.

Moscow dispatches telling of the armistice were held up pending the formal Japanese announcement.

Authorities believe that the agreement would free the Japanese army, parts of which were concentrated along the Manchukuan frontier, to consolidate the Nipponese gains in China following last week's sweeping changes in the Japanese high command.

LEGION POSTS FAVOR NEUTRALITY BILL CHANGE

Veterans Say Law Should Be Changed To Permit Sales Abroad

NEW COMMANDER

World War veterans in session at Norristown Wednesday night favored the breaking of the isolation-neutrality stand of the United States. The action was taken at a meeting of the Posts of the Ninth District.

The neutrality bill came in for a long discussion in which many of the Legionnaires present took part, and the trend of thought was away from the isolation policy in regard to the war situation in Europe.

The final consensus was in favor of the amendment of the neutrality bill, so as to permit the sending of food, munitions and supplies.

This recommendation was made with the provision that it should be carried out on a strictly cash-and-carry basis, and that only ships of the purchasing countries should be used in transportation of such materials.

The delegates of the district to the national convention were instructed to so record the sentiments of the Bucks-Montgomery counties area, when the convale is held at Chicago, later this month.

The delegates are: Harold Reese, Ardmore and William Smith, Doylestown. Alternates are: Raymond Hemmerly, Melrose Park, and Russell Garber, Norristown.

Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., of Bristol, was installed as the new commander of the district by the retiring commander, Raymond Hemmerly, Melrose Park.

Mr. Hemmerly spoke in appreciation of the support he had received during his administration, and Mr. Schmidt, in his address, asked for the same consideration on the part of the posts.

He also named the appointive officers for his term of office, as follows: adjutant, William Lancaster, Port Washington; sergeant-at-arms, Charles Rathke, Bristol; bugler, Johnson Miller, Yardley; judge advocate, Stewart Nase, Lansdale; service officer for Montgomery county, Stewart Yeagle, Norristown; for Bucks county, Harry LaBr, Langhorne; Americanization chairman for Montgomery county, Dr. Charles Sohl, Glenside; for Bucks, William C. Butler, Doylestown.

Reports were presented on the state convention held at Williamsport, last month, and announcement was made that the district Armistice Day service will be held November 5, at Quakertown.

It seems that the self-service markets are doing the parents of young children a favor hereabouts.

A young couple entered one of the markets the other day with their baby of approximately two years. The baby became tired of following her elders about, and was not satisfied until she was permitted to ride in the top basket.

Yes—the groceries rode in the lower basket.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Sellersville borough's bicycle registration law was put to its first practical use Monday and functioned perfectly.

It resulted in the return of a stolen bicycle to its owner, and the jailing of a youth who faces charges of stealing it.

The wheel is the property of William Seachrist, Sellersville R. D., and was stolen on Labor Day. Seachrist had his bicycle properly registered under the new law, which became effective last January.

Registration cards call for complete information to be entered on the borough records and on the cards. This includes the manufacturer's number, which is stamped in the metal on every bicycle.

Monday a friend of Seachrist showed him a new bicycle lamp he had purchased, and Seachrist immediately identified it as his own.

It was learned that the lamp had been purchased from Howard Wright, 19, Parkside, Chief Frank Hallman, of the Sellersville police, went with Seachrist to interview Wright.

Wright produced what was presumably his own bicycle, which bore little resemblance to Seachrist's. The stolen bicycle was cream colored, and deck-

BANDITS LIVED LIKE KINGS ON THEIR HAULS

Four Who Robbed Dublin and Raritan Banks Tell Officers of Activities

NEW CARS, FINE TRIPS

Four young men arrested for bank hold-ups in Pennsylvania and New Jersey have informed police of the life of ease they led until they became embroiled in the arms of the law a week ago.

The four, who were taken into custody by FBI agents, officials of Bucks County, Philadelphia and state officers, and accused of robbing the Dublin National Bank of $3,500 and the Raritan National Bank, N. J., of $25,000, are: John Hryhorcz, 19 (alias Roscoe Harris), Philadelphia; Leon Kulish, 22, Doylestown; R. D. Stanley Bratec, 23, Carversville; and William Hennessey, 19, Buckingham Valley.

Fine hotels during trips which took them to Florida and the middle West, girl friends, theatre parties, new automobiles, nice clothing, were some of the luxuries included in the "fling" which the quartet had before the officers put an end to the gay life. They admit they spent practically all but $33 of their "hauls" during the past four months.

The statements of the bandits are being made voluntarily to members of the Pennsylvania Motor Police at the Doylestown sub-station.

All four bandits, one of whom has been turned over to the New Jersey State Police, have made a clean breast of the entire life of crime in which they were successful to a great extent over a period of less than a year. Motor Police are attempting to link them up with other crimes and by the time they are taken before a Justice

JUDGE GIVES BRISTOL PAIR ANOTHER CHANCE

Suspends Sentence On Carmie Whyno and Anthony Muccie

GETZ IS REPRIMANDED

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 16—Declaring that the Court is more anxious to have good citizens than to fill up the prison, Judge Calvin S. Boyer, who suspended sentence in the case of two Bristol fathers, Anthony Muccie, 25, 307 Lincoln avenue, and Carmie Whyno, 41, of Bath Road, on Thursday, said: "I am willing to go half-way to give you another chance since both of you have families to support and did go straight until you yielded to your last temptation."

The two Italian defendants, who pleaded guilty to stealing copper wire from the Warner Company, are WPA workers. Both have had previous records.

Frank Boyle, Pennsylvania Parole Officer, of Philadelphia, who testified that a New Jersey reformatory had a detainee lodged against Muccie, said that the reformatory authorities were willing to give him another chance because of the confidence they had in him.

"I am sorry that you two men had to get into the Bucks county courts again," said Judge Boyer. "Both of you had pretty bad records some time ago. You must have decided some time while being in a reformatory and prison to go straight after your penal experiences."

"It was too bad that you couldn't keep on going straight after you made such a good beginning. Why did you fall for this last temptation?" Judge Boyer asked the defendants.

Neither one could explain his deviation which brought them into the hands of the law. Both were on the WPA and attempted to sell the copper wire which they thought was junk when they stole it.

Muccie and Whyno promised Judge Boyer he would never see them in court again.

"Bad conduct, whether it is serious or not, can bring you back for sentence at any time if you do not behave yourselves," said Judge Boyer, who suspended sentence and placed them on probation for three years.

"Remember, you are only serving your sentence out-of-doors, and you had better watch your step," warned Judge Boyer. The costs of prosecution were placed on the county because both have dependent families.

John Kervick, of Bristol, charged with non-support, was released on probation by Judge Boyer on condition that he pay a support order of $8 for his wife and child.

The case of Wesley Getz, 186 North Clinton street, this place, charged with non-support, was ordered continued until October 2 by President Judge Hiram H. Keller.

Mrs. Minnie Getz, wife of the defendant, and two sons, will appear in court at that time in order to give full details surrounding the case. Becoming flippant and discourteous on the stand, Getz was thoroughly reprimanded by President Judge Keller who told him to get busy and find employment. Getz was permitted to enter into his own recognizance.

FELLOW-WORKERS, NEIGHBORS TODAY AID CULLEN FAMILY

Group of Men Expected From Philadelphia to Clear Debris of Bridgewater Fire

TO BUILD A HOUSE

Family Being Cared For By Reynolds Family On Bristol Pike

Friends, neighbors and fellow workers are rallying to the aid of Roger Cullen and his family of a wife and six children and today are expected to begin efforts to provide a house in which to shelter them. The Cullens were driven from their home on Maple avenue, Bridgewater, early Thursday morning when fire razed their house, garage, and consumed most of their clothing, an eight-year old sedan and all of their furniture.

A committee of four have banded together and today are soliciting recruits to aid in the work to be done in behalf of the Cullens. The committee consists of Englebert Smith, Howard Davis, Elmer Yorty and William Lemon, Bridgewater. This committee solicits volunteer mechanics such as carpenters, plumbers and electricians and any others who might desire to give a helping hand.

Today 15 fellow workers of Cullen, who for seven years was employed at the National Haircloth Co., 1224 N. Howard street, Phila., are expected to start work clearing the site for a new home for the family which almost in the twinkling of an eye had all of their worldly possessions snatched from them. These 15 men are expected to come to Bridgewater this morning and go to the site where once stood the Cullen home. They are expected to clear the site, raze what remains of the charred mass of framework and remove debris caused by the fire. These men will continue until the entire site is cleared and ready to have another house erected thereon. Yesterday they "passed the hat" among Cullen's fellow employees, without his knowledge, and raised for him a sum of money which will indeed prove to be of much assistance in the re-establishment of the family.

Cullen purchased the house and four lots on Maple avenue, Bridgewater, in 1937 and was paying for it through one of the building and loan associations. There was also a second mortgage on the property. Yesterday friends got busy and it was arranged whereby the insurance money added to the worth of the building and loan association stock will pay off the first mortgage. The holder of the second mortgage agreed not to take the $400 due out of the insurance money but to let Cullen use this money which along with $222.58 due him from the insurance and building and loan money will provide $622.58. This money is to be used to purchase material for the new house. Four building supply firms, Dowden Engineering Co., C. E. Stoneback & Sons, C. S. Wetherill Estate and F. A. Simons, have agreed to sell and deliver at cost what building material is needed to at least give the family a place to live and to protect them from the wintry blasts of the near future. A five room bungalow is to be planned and then the Neighborhood Committee will ask for volunteer mechanics. Other neighbors have agreed to provide such tools as saws, hammers, wheelbarrows and other essentials.

The four lots 200' by 130' on which the previous Cullen home stood is a scene of great activity today. There are indications that there will be much greater activity within the coming week.

The Cullen family has been taken into the home of LeRoy Reynolds, Bristol Pike, where they have been made comfortable until such time as they can get re-established.

To Retire As School Director; Served 32 Years

NEWTOWN, Sept. 16—Stacy B. Brown, after having served as a school director in Newtown borough for 32 years will retire on December 1. Mr. Brown declined the nomination this year and the Republicans named in his stead Marvin V. Keller.

Mr. Brown, who has been treasurer and chairman of the building committee, leaves behind a far different plant than when he took office in 1907. During his term in office the stone building on Chancellor street and the stone and brick addition on Congress street have been built and equipped.

This Summer, to bring thirty-two years' service to an appropriate ending, he has supervised grading and repairs to the grounds, and the installation of new class rooms for shop practice, agriculture and domestic science.

Mr. Brown, who has been engaged in business as a funeral director for many years in addition to attending to the requirements of his extensive business, has served the county as a jury commissioner. He is a member of the executive committee of the Republican party, a director of the Newtown Title and Trust Company, a director of the Langhorne Building and Loan Association and superintendent of the Newtown Cemetery.

CONSTITUTION DAY

Celebration of the 152nd anniversary of the signing of the United States Constitution may well mark a redefinition of all the people to those principles of freedom and independence which were uppermost in the minds of the nation's founders when the framework of government was conceived and put into effect.

Times and conditions have changed since 1787. America is no longer a distinctively agrarian country. Industry and commerce have been developed beyond the wildest imagination of anyone living a century and a half ago. Social and economic problems of baffling complexity have displaced the relatively simple issues of bygone days.

Nevertheless, the Constitution still stands as a bulwark of liberty, offering the assurance of real democracy, provided only that the people maintain the basic ideals contained therein.

That the Constitution is being menaced can scarcely be denied in this period of excessive Federalization.

What is needed in critical times like these is strict adherence to the system of checks and balances written into the Constitution for the express purpose of thwarting any undue use of power. The executive, legislative and judicial authorities must be kept on a plane of relative equality. There must be no crafty inflation of any single division of Federal government.

It is as true today as it ever was that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. Constitution Day 1939 will long endure as a historic milestone if it comes to exemplify the staunch devotion to those fundamentals of popular government that were introduced at the birth of the nation as a means of offering permanent security against the ever-present threat of ruthless, dictatorial rule.

UNITED AND TRUE TO FORM

Canada followed Britain into the European conflict by just a week to the day. Canada by this action created a precedent, because it was the first time that the senior domain of the British Commonwealth, on its own account and by its own will, exercised this prerogative of nationhood by declaring a state of war. In the last war, the Dominion government joined the rest of the empire by merely publishing the British war proclamation of 1914. But in another respect Canada follows tradition, and that is in the calmness of its people.

The day of the beginning of a new war for the Canadian people was a typical Sunday, a day in which the hustle and bustle of a busy nation's life was stilled, so that the people might enjoy the day of rest and foregather in their houses of worship. The war declaration did not disturb the even tenor of the ways of Canadians. There was no undue stir, no clamor or visible excitement. This situation was not surprising, for the temper of the British in great emergencies rules not only in Britain but in the dominions across the seas.

Nor was there any disturbance in the flow of traffic back and forth across the border. Officials of the United States and Canada said no new immigration restrictions were adopted nor was there any formality to mark the historic occasion for Sunday travelers.

Canada joins hand with three other dominions, New Zealand, Australia and the Union of South Africa, in supporting the London declaration that a state of war exists.

District Attorney Carl B. Shelley of Dauphin County said he would be prepared to open the trial of the former Erie Administration Cabinet official as scheduled. . . . All witnesses for the trial have already been subpoenaed, he said. . . . Former Judge J. Dress Pannell of Harrisburg, one of Lawrence's attorneys, said he had no knowledge of a postponement and that he was continuing with his preparations for the trial opening. . . . Lawrence is charged with election violations.

The possibility has been advanced that a decision on the appeal of Roy E. Brownmiller, convicted ex-Secretary of Highways, for a new trial may be postponed by Judge Howard W. Hughes until after the primary election. . . . Hughes is campaigning for re-election.

District Attorney Shelley, with no opposition in the Republican primary, is apparently headed for victory in the general election, Dauphin County being a confirmed Republican stronghold. . . . Shelley, who is making his first bid for election, having been appointed in his present post, will be opposed in the November election by Paul A. Kunkel, uncle of State Senator George Kunkel. . . . Shelley's opponent is a brother of the late Judge George Kunkel who presided over the Capitol graft cases of 30 years ago.

Vegetables That Please Your Family

By Katharine Fisher

Director, Good Housekeeping Institute

You are almost sure to serve meat, fish, cheese or eggs, as well as a starch vegetable, such as potatoes, rice, dried lima—or macaroni—once a day. You are likely to include apple sweets, too. But don't you always careful to see that each day the family gets a green leafy or yellow vegetable, and another non-starchy one—as well as a crisp raw vegetable in some form? Such vegetables contain precious minerals and vitamins that each of us needs in our everyday meals to keep fit.

KATHARINE FISHER
Director of
Good Housekeeping
Institute

When cooking vegetables there's no reason why you should not don your apron as the artist does his smock and, with the same sure touch, cook such tasty, colorful vegetables that the serving dish must be heaped up a second time before the meal is over. If yours fall short of this, it's because you haven't learned the secret of their cooking. The simpler the vegetable dishes which you serve to your family, the more need there is for perfection in cooking and seasoning them.

In cooking vegetables we use a saucepan with a tight-fitting cover, and we pour in about 1 inch of water before adding the vegetables. Never attempt to cook any vegetables—except greens—in a saucepan without water; more than likely they will scorch and burn. Not until we hear the water boiling merrily do we add the vegetable, for we want it to cook tender in the shortest possible time and keep its lovely color. Yes, we add salt—about ½ tsp. for every cupful of water used. Often we add a pinch of sugar.

No vegetable is ready for serving until we have tasted it and added that last shake of salt or pepper, or that generous lump of butter or margarine. Your vegetables will be equally delicious if, instead of using butter or margarine, you add salad oil to them when they are half done—½ tsp. for each serving. You'll enjoy the flavor and glisten of the vegetables, and you'll need no butter.

One word about cooking vegetables in a quantity of water. The Institute does not recommend it, because the minerals and flavor that dissolve out of the vegetables into the water are lost when the water is discarded. However, if your family prefers to temper the flavor of the more strongly flavored vegetables, such as cauliflower, broccoli, onions, and Brussels sprouts, you can accomplish this by cooking them in enough boiling water to cover. But snatch them off as soon as tender, for they will darken and take on an unpleasant flavor if overcooked.

Should you add soda? Well, if you do, make it only a pinch, since larger amounts may endanger the vitamin-B and -C content of the vegetables.

Although the war in Europe has driven from the minds of Pennsylvania voters most of their interest in the coming election, political circles still hope to be able to discover when the vote is counted what change if any there has been in the State's political lineup since the last election. . . . With next year a Presidential election year, both sides are eager to measure their strength.

"REDHEADS ARE LUCKY"

BY VERA BROWN

CHAPTER XXXIV

"You aren't still serious about Regan, are you?"

"Of course not, Bob. We're just old friends."

"I know all about that, Mike. But it looks to me as though you might wake up some morning and find yourself in a lot of trouble. Iris Regan will come back one of these days and then what?"

"Then what am I supposed to do, Bob?"

"Forget him! Go out with Don or somebody. You don't go any place any more!"

Kenyon was so persistent that she went out with Don one night only to come in at midnight to find her telephone ringing. It was Handsome from Detroit!

"Where on earth have you been?" "Just out for dinner, darling."

"Until midnight? Don't fool me!"

"I'm not. I had dinner with Don Raye."

"Don't do it again. I don't want you going out with strange men!"

"Don't be ridiculous," Mike pleaded.

"I'm not, but stay home after this. I might want to talk to you on the telephone. Here I've been trying to get you since ten o'clock. Did you like the game today, Skipper? Four more to go, and I get the old contract back!"

Before the team came back to New York, Wish Malone invited Mike to dine with him at his apartment. "I asked you up here for a special reason," Mike laughed.

"You're an angel, Wish, but I always suspect you of some deep plot!" Wish did not laugh. He reached into his pocket and pulled out an envelope addressed to Larry Regan, c/o N. Y. Yankee Baseball Club.

"Read it," said Wish and, at a glance, Mike saw that it was dated the day before from Honolulu and was signed by Iris. Its message was brief: "STARTING HOME TUESDAY ARRIVING FOR SERIES. GOOD LUCK AND LOVE, IRIS."

The blow had fallen! She was numb. Wish watched her.

"Mr. Crisp sent out orders today to the road secretary that if any cables came for Handsome, they were to be given to Ace." Although Wish's voice was quiet, it was plain to see he was almost as upset as Mike.

"Tell me, Skipper, we're doing right? He's going so swell. It's a shame to upset him now. He's got a chance at those four games. He's knocking everybody cold. I just can't let her hurt him now."

"But if she comes for the Series, what can we do?"

"That's why I asked you to come up here tonight, Mike. We've got to plan for that emergency."

"What can we do? We can't chloroform her!"

"I've got a better idea."

"What?"

"Kidnaping!"

"You're not serious?"

"I am. But I mean: Kidnap Handsome! Let me explain. If the Series is played in New York, we've got to keep people away from him. I've already written his father."

"What has he got to do with it?"

"That's simple. You and his dad must keep Handsome away from everybody."

"How in the world can we do that?"

"To begin with, you've got to take a vacation while the Series is here."

"I might be able to arrange that."

"Then I think you could take an apartment next to . . . for Mr. Regan. We can keep Handsome there. I'll help."

"How can we ever hide him?"

"That's up to you, Mike. It must be done. Iris ruined him once, she isn't going to do it again." Wish's voice was grim. "I'll take care of her when the time comes!"

They talked over the situation. Wish was bitter. Mike seemed the more composed of the two.

"Has anyone been talking up on her, Wish?" Mike asked.

"Yes, we've been investigating. . . . She's been living with an old friend of hers, a girl she used to know back home in Kansas."

"Kansas? I thought she came from Chicago?"

"Originally, a Kansas girl," Wish said. "There's a picture in the papers tonight of a cousin of hers that's made the movies." Wish picked up a tabloid and handed it to Mike. The girl glanced at it.

"She's very pretty, looks a lot like Iris, doesn't she?" Then she looked at the caption under the picture: "A Pretty Girl from Pretty, Kansas. She is Royall Russell who has just signed a long term contract in Hollywood. Blonde Miss Russell is a cousin of Handsome Regan's handsome wife, Iris."

Mike reread the lines. "Pretty, Kansas." Where had she heard the name of that town? She thought hard, a deep frown in her eyes.

Finally Mike remembered. That nice old lady she'd met that day in the park in Chicago. She said she'd come from Pretty, Kansas. Mike's eyes widened. What had the old lady said? That her daughter was at the Inferno cafe?

Murder and revenge keep no hours as Preston Foster, a stop-at-nothing editor, and Lynn Bari, the daring reporter, hurl themselves at the two-fold task of freeing a man innocently sentenced to death, and discovering the master mind that has victimized a nation.

After all these years, Louis Hayward, who co-stars with Joan Bennett in "The Man In The Iron Mask," an Edward Small production for United Artists release, which will be the feature attraction at the Grand Theatre where it begins a run on Sunday, had to go back to the primitive method of "bottle feeding" during production.

The heavy iron mask which Hayward wore both as King Louis XIV of France and his twin brother, Philippe, was not easily adjusted. Usually the process took about 20 minutes. Consequently, whenever Hayward developed a thirst and called for water, it had to be brought to him in a bottle to which was attached a small hose, through which he drank.

Leagues Stress Missionary Dept.; Donate $200 in Food

Food and clothing valued at nearly $200 was donated for the Fifth Street Mission, of Philadelphia, last evening, through the annual missionary project booth festival, conducted by Bristol Group of Epworth Leagues in the Bristol Methodist Church.

Voting for honors in originality of idea and ingenuity of display, 10 Leagues arranged booths under the general subject of "United States," the goods donated by the leagues of the theme of the individual display. The award for first place was the "stunt" banner which is presented at each bi-monthly meeting of the group.

First place winner last evening was Langhorne Epworth League, with 64 points, the placements being announced by Mrs. Arthur Blaker, Yardley, third vice-president (missionary department), of the Group. Langhorne's arrangement represented the Bucks County Fair, with a farmer and his wife being represented by two children, Walter and Alice Smyrnes. About them were baskets of fruits and vegetables, both canned and fresh; flowers, honey, live chickens, etc., the value of the goods being $36.

Bensalem League was second with a very original display representing "The Parade of Dimes" to the Warm Springs Foundation Sanatorium, Georgia. The points scored were 58. In attractively arranged grounds were placed "Georgian Hall," and two other sanatorium buildings, with bubbling water in the lighted pool as the central theme. A parade of scores of little men, fashioned of red pipe cleaners, with a dime for each hand and face, marched up and walked toward the buildings, while nurses and doctors waited to minister to the needs of the ill. Ambulances and stretchers had their places in the arrangement.

Other Leagues placed in the following order: Yardley, Bristol, Emille, Harriman, Morrisville, Hulmeville, Trevoise, Newtown.

Bristol League chose as the subject of its booth, "Minnesota," with an electric train carrying grain to a grain elevator and storage plant by the lake shore. The idea originated with Clarence Hollenbach, who was aided in the artistry by Harold Coons. Value was $30. Scottsville League by means of a table map showed location of Battle Creek, Mich., in the Great Lakes country, with red ribbons attached from that city to cities on the United States map at the rear, depicting distribution centers for cereals.

Emille's arrangement was of tomatoes, "The Pride of Our Community." A field was filled with "cherry" tomatoes, with pickers placing them in baskets and trucks, and shipping them by train and truck to a store-house which was also shown, alongside a huge artificial tomato. Fresh tomatoes, as well as products such as chili sauce, juice, catsup, tomato butter, and canned tomatoes were the donations. Corn-stalks decorated the wayside market of Harriman League, with members donating corn products, such as syrup, chowder, muffin-mix, cornstarch, flakes, popcorn, cans of corn, etc., while at the front of the booth a doll fashioned of an ear of corn stood by a loaf of corn-bread.

The central theme of Yardley league was the "Star-Spangled Banner," fashioned of red flowers in red, white and blue, the flag measuring about three by four feet. The display was a variety of foods. Hulmeville Leagues had a Christmas display, with gifts of clothing and food under a lighted tree. From Newtown came the idea of the 10th anniversary of baseball. Miniature players were busy at a game on a tiny diamond, while the stadium seats were formed by boxes of cereals arranged in tiers. Decorations were formed of baseball, glove and bats.

"Corn" was the choice of Trevoise League, a map of the United States showing by means of coloring the corn producing States, the gifts being corn products. Morrisville donated a variety of foods.

The scheduled speaker of the evening, the Rev. W. Vernon Middleton, was unable to attend, and the president, William Roesechen, Newtown, introduced the Rev. Francis Thomas, pastor of Yardley Methodist Church, who brought the message. He told of the work of the Philadelphia City Missionary Society, and of the vision of the secretary, the scheduled speaker, in this activity. Considering the struggle against poverty, and the ever-constant war against sin, ignorance and the "isms" that creep in in the crowded city, the Rev. Thomas stated that it seems the individual fighting such is "thinking in terms of the impossible," then he hastily explained that, such fight is impossible for the lone person, but not when one church after another, and one League after another band together to bring light into the dark places. He recalled Paul's missionary spirit, mentioning that the task now as in those days is to bring men out of darkness. He urged the young people to press on in Christian achievement, even when the task is seemingly impossible, aiding in bringing hope and new life to those in darkness.

The prayer of the evening was made by the Rev. J. Carpenter Zook, pastor of Bristol Church; secretary's report given by Miss Dorothy Lovett, Emille; and treasurer's report by Miss Frances Begner, Hulmeville League.

of the Peace for a hearing they will be certain of a long vacation ahead of them behind prison bars.

Kulish is reported to have complained about prison food after eating in ritzy hotels and restaurants in Florida on stolen bank money. Another of the three bandits sent home for money to get some cigars and smoking tobacco, while another sent home for a change of clothing. Kulish was aroused in such a hurry the other morning when he was arrested by Motor Police that he donned a pair of shoes that were not mates, and his request yesterday was that he be allowed to have a matching pair sent to the Bucks County Prison.

The bandits, with full confessions given the Motor Police, in addition to a re-enactment of the entire plot and actual holdup of the Dublin bank, were not the least bit hesitant about telling the Motor Police everything.

They also told officers of the New Jersey State Police details concerning the Raritan bank robbery on July 18, when about $19,000 was stolen. John Hryhorec, 19, Philadelphia, who was not in on the Dublin robbery, is in the custody of the New Jersey State Police.

The real story of the Dublin robbery was told by the bandits. Several things were cleared up. After the Dublin robbery on the afternoon of June 13, the bandits—Bratec, Hennessey and Kulish—in a car they had stolen from Jenkintown in the morning, fled in the direction of Route 611 over back roads, crossed Route 611 and stopped somewhere near Stover State Park at an abandoned farm house where they divided the stolen money and hid their weapons. They crossed the Delaware River at Lumberville and not at Center Bridge as first reported. The next day they returned to their respective homes in Buckingham township and started to "live like kings" while the Raritan bank robbery was planned.

Kulish, Hennessey and Bratec bought new cars and a truck. They associated with friends in their home community, made dates with their girl friends, paid back old debts and had a grand time.

Finally they robbed the Raritan, N. J., bank with Hryhorec. More high life followed and things went along nicely until one member of the quartet made a bad move and from that point on they were followed and checked up by Pennsylvania Motor Police until the time of their arrest.

All crimes charged against the Buckingham township trio have not been made public.

French Advances Registered On The Western Front

The communiqué indicated that French efforts to widen the mouth of their military piers and spread the battle front are succeeding.

Each day the French troops, pressing forward with their relentless advance, are gaining more ground along the eastern bank of the Moselle.

At the same time German efforts to split the French flanks—shown by the German counter attack down the valley of the Nied River between Niedaltdorf and Kempnichbenndorf—is failing despite the heaviest possible artillery barrages and despite heavy aerial attacks upon the French lines.

BERLIN, Sept. 16—Capture of Bielystak, 110 miles northeast of Warsaw, was announced by German military authorities today. General headquarters also stated that fighting was in progress in the suburb of Lemberg (Lwow), far to the southeast of Warsaw.

The announcement indicated that the German forces are moving relentlessly forward in their campaign to surround Warsaw and at the same time cut off Poland from contact with Rumania. On the western front, the German high command announced the repulse of the French attack by artillery fire "with considerable losses." The communiqué denied reports the French and British air forces were on German territory.

While the fast moving German corps continued their advance in Poland, Nazi circles expressed belief that Berlin negotiations for Soviet occupation of part of Poland are nearing completion. It was asserted that Soviet military attaches have been in daily conferences with German leaders and that a final arrangement is about to be completed for the Soviet to take over the white Russian area of northeastern Poland.

Another report said that Lithuania which may also occupy Vilna, former Lithuanian capital, which was seized by Poland in 1920.

While German troops appeared to be making short work of Polish residences, north German forces pursued the defensive of Brest-Litovsk, encircling that city. The southern forces closed around Lwow.

Warsaw is completely encircled, it was claimed, while Polish troops west of Warsaw were said to be thrown back with heavy losses when they attempted to break through.

Removal of Bridge Is Much Desired

may appear to be a queer procedure. However, the canal is no longer a canal. It is merely an empty ditch on the bed of which is a spur railroad track running to a local coal yard and it is used but three months out of the year. In Morrisville it is felt that such a grade crossing would hardly be a hazard.

Under the State Highway Department plans, however, the bridge here would be substituted by a larger bridge with longer approaches.

Whatever the final decision, however, it appears certain some definite action on the bridge will be taken before next year.

Throughout the borough, the police radio system has evoked considerable praise. The two-way hook-up, connected with the Trenton police headquarters system has been in operation for two months and has increased the efficiency of the local department many times. Chief of Police Albert Cooper in his report for that period listed 146 calls answered by the cruiser car with 46 arrests made.

The car is on duty 21 hours a day, Chief Cooper serves from 8:30 a. m. to five p. m. Officer Joseph Lebegeth takes over from five p. m. until one a. m., and Officer Andrew Thompson from one to five a. m.

It is estimated the car makes a complete tour of the borough at least eight times a day. It can reach any section of the town in an emergency in three minutes.

Before the radio system was adopted, residents needing the services of the police were obliged to call Chief Cooper's home. A red light was then turned on in the center of the town. However, if an officer wasn't in the immediate vicinity, the call would go unanswered for some time. Now, however, all residents need do is to call 2-3441 at Trenton, ask for Radio and report their case. The call is immediately radioed to the Morrisville cruiser car. During the three hours the car is off duty, Chief Cooper has a receiving set at his home to receive any calls.

The traffic lights, located overhead at North Pennsylvania and Trenton avenues and at Bridge street and Pennsylvania avenue, have relieved the officers of much traffic duty and leave them available for police protection purposes.
